Effectiveness Rating

The imagery at the top is quite striking. Though after the effects of that wears off we begin to notice these 3 columns of information which sparks to mind a overload of information displayed in a slightly clumsy way. The navigation bar itself seems to be too small and does not grab you, perhaps due to the grey type on grey. To make matter worse above the navigation on the left is what seems to be a first navigation with a button which says skip to main content. Which when clicked you realize should just be called home. Also the styles don't match.
